IN MEMORIAM.

Concerning the tragic death of John W. Webber, a brother of Mrs. Charles Trevathan, who was killed in an explosion with five others at Camp Bowie on Wednesday, the Nashville Banner contained the following:

Young John Webber, the Nashville boy whose death was reported among the fatalities occasioned by the explosion of a shell in the encampment near Ft. Worth, was a manly youth who held a warm place in the hearts of the many friends he had in this city. He was a volunteer early after the outbreak of the war and enthusiastic in his patriotism. His death in the training camp makes him as much a hero martyr to the country's cause as if he had fallen at the battle front. He was the third of his generation in Nashville and has a number of relatives among well known people of the city. His widowed mother, for a number of years one of the most popular teachers in the public schools has the warmest sympathy from her many friends in her great bereavement. To her may be applied the language of Lincoln's letter to a civil war mother who had lost five sons in battle: "I pray that our Holy Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours, to have lain so costly a sacrifice on the altar of freedom."

HENRY HOLLAND FINED FOR WHIPPING CHILDREN

Henry Holland, charged with whipping his children, was tried before Squire W. T. Snow on Friday morning and fined $5.00. Deputy Sheriff H. E. Butler and City Marshal Harry Hancock made the arrest. It is said that his actions were reported by neighbors and that he was whipping his children when the officers arrived. His request to remain and continue to correct his children was denied by the officers who locked him up over night to await his trial. It is also stated that Holland said it was necessary to whip his son, aged 11, and daughter, 13, as they attacked him. Holland lives in West Paris and is employed at the L. & N. shops.

OLD SOLDIER ADMITS BEING SCARED DURING WAR

Frank Rawls, of India, was in Paris on Friday and on being asked how he felt, replied that he could plow just as well today as he ever could. Judge D. T. Spaulding and other friends in the judge's office doubted the assertion and twitted our old Confederate Veteran friend of 77 years who finally said that he could plow as well as he could two years ago. In proving that he was a good man and good fighter, he said that he was scared to death all the time that he was in the war; that a man to be a good fighter must be half scared to death. Mr. Rawls will be 78 years old in October.

THE FASHIONS OF PATRIOTISM Materials That Fly Our Colors SUMMER KNITTING BAGS

New York, May 16, 1918.
Everywhere along Fifth Avenue one sees evidence of the many ways in which patriotism has crept into the fashion world. Of course, the red, white and blue of our flag is repeated in numerous ways. Some of the dainty collar-and-cuff sets to be worn with suits or to add the distinctive touch to the serge dress, are embryonic flags, for the edges are rolled and whipped in red and blue on the white linen.

An odd note is struck by the taf-feta dress for street wear that is piped in linen. The French are very fond indeed of these unusual combinations. On the whole, the effect is always one of extreme simplicity, that charmingly deceitful simplicity that has taken so much thought and care to obtain.

Knitting Bags for Summer.

Now that the knitting bag is a recognized article of—one is almost tempted to say—wear, designs practical for the different seasons are absolutely necessary. With the sheer organdie dress, be-ruffled and be-ribboned, a bag of heavy brocade, tapestry or velvet is out of place. The summer bags are far more frivolous than those for winter, even when the knitting they contain is of the same shade of khaki or blue. There are lingerie knitting bags, bewitching little slip-over cases of fine linen, embroidered perhaps, which may be taken off of their linings of pale blue, yellow or green silk, and laundered as often as desired. They are so cool-looking the fair owner enjoys carrying them around!

Smart Dress of Gingham and Duck.

Materials, too, are following suit, and while the colors are not so blatantly those of the flag, one finds gingham and voiles of soft blues plaided with rose and white. The dress illustrated here was made of gingham, the collar, cuffs, vest and trimming on the skirt was of white duck, and all the edges were bound with navy-blue cotton braid. A dress of this type is particularly good for street wear as it is so simple and smart. The skirt is a trifle longer than usual, this being one of the newest dictates of Dame Fashion.

News From Paris.

From Paris comes news of longer skirts, though they still continue rather narrow. Sometimes they are pleated with the deep hems turned up on the right side, a piping or cord finishing the top. Many of the new models are beltless, finished by a deep, fitted yoke. Sports skirts combine linen of two colors, the hem being of deep rose, for instance, and the upper part of Belgian blue. Often strips of two colors are sewed together vertically, the hem being of the darker tone.

Beads are very great favorites for trimming, either bands of small or larger beads worked into some intricate design. Sometimes the shoulder seams and yoke outlines of lingerie and crepe waists are beaded. Fringe, too, is coming into its share of attention; sashes have deeply fringed ends; and dresses of soft silk, satin or charmeuse have fringe around the lower edge of the skirt, around the neck, and also as a finish for the short sleeves.

Dainty Afternoon Dress of Mull

Then there are more practical-looking bags of pongee or sports silk that carry out the color scheme of the sports costume. Bags of heavy linen are extremely useful, and these may be stenciled in some interesting design, or embroidered, or have large flowers and weird birds applied on with heavy mercerized cotton. Cretone, too, makes stunning bags, and there are so many unusual shapes for them, and ways in which the handles may be managed.

For Special Occasions.

There is nothing more attractive for the occasion when one wishes to be particularly well dressed than the frock of soft silk mull or tissue, with a touch of embroidery or beads, in the same color as the rest of the dress. The one illustrated here is extremely simple. The skirt has two rather wide tucks above the hem of the same width; the tucks are repeated in the waist and on the cuffs, and there are medallion-like motifs on the waist and skirt.

"REBELLION IN HELL."

Big sparks flew from old Satan's eyes. "What's this hear?" said he. "They say that when the kaiser dies, he'll be consigned to me. Old Hell to me is mighty dear, the place is very fine; but if they send that guy down here, believe me, I'll resign. I'll stand for murderers and crooks, and will not disown that I have here upon my books the worst things ever known. But my boys would get sore, I fear; I know they would rebel. The kaiser can not enter here, for he would corrupt hell. Our sulphur is too clean for him; our brimstone lakes too pure, and if in one he took a swim, he'd ruin it, I'm sure. Our company is not so swell, vile beasts we won't reject; but keep the kaiser out of Hell, we have some self respect."

IMPROVING FROM OPERATION.
Comus Robinson, who resides near Conyersville, was operated upon for appendicitis Wednesday night at the Mason Hospital at Murray. He is doing very nicely. G. R. Robinson, an uncle, visited him on Sunday.
